

COLLEGE MEN FOR M'KINLEY
ACTIVE WORK DONE BY THE AMERICAN REPUBLICAN COLLEGE LEAGUE.

ALL OVER THE COUNTRY.

Newport, R. I., July 25 (Special).—The college professors and students of the country are coming out almost solidly for McKinley, Hobart and sound money. This is a remarkably significant fact for the last few years professors and students have been widely at variance on political questions; the professors, almost without exception, have been strong believers in free trade, while the students have been equally firm adherents of protection. Especially has this been the case at Harvard University, where President Eliot, Professor Charles Eliot Norton and other influential men have been active Mumps. With

The students have been different; the Harvard Republican Club has had a large proportion of the entire membership of the university on its rolls, while the Democratic club has only enjoyed a brief and precarious existence, and now bids fair to die an untimely death.

At the college sentiment which is so rapidly making itself felt is due to the efforts of the American Republican College League, which has clubs in practically every college of the land, and which is this year doing an enormous work among the young men. The officers of this organization are in daily communication with clubs and men and make arrangements for the fall campaign. The headquarters of the league are at Cambridge during the college year, but in the summer the Campaign Committee directs the work from New York, and it is here that the voters will send representatives. I. W. Mott, of the University, has charge of the committee's work, and is kept busy answering requests for information, etc.

YOUNG MEN EAGER TO SERVE.

The young men are "falling over themselves" in their anxiety to make speeches for the party, but the league hopes to take care of all who can give their services. Yesterday a list was received from the University of Wisconsin of twenty-seven experienced speakers who were willing to go on the stump during the fall. And this is only one of a hundred clubs. Fletcher Dobyns, of Ohio, is president of the Harvard Democratic Club, and was considered the best orator in the university, but now he is resigned, and expects to spend the fall making speeches for McKinley. The name is the case with many other members of the club. Percy Strauss, of New York, whose father is a member of Congress and a close friend of President Cleveland, says that he will follow his father's lead and make a speech in the fall, and many other "sons of their fathers" will follow his example, among them being the son of Carl Schurz, the son of John D. Long, the son of Mary Estlin, of Ohio; M. E. Ingalls, the railroad magnate, and dozens of others of equal prominence. Harry Friedberg, a young gladiator, who organized the League last year, will stump Kansas.

On the day after Bryan was nominated Prosser Norton said that it was the duty of every patriotic American to vote for McKinley and Hobart. When asked what his own political affairs are looked for with the greatest interest owing to his absolute devotion to the cause, he considers the right. His cousin, President Eliot, four years ago an elector-at-large on the Democratic ticket, as much, but is working quietly for the Republican ticket. Professor Taussig, admittedly the greatest authority on the tariff and silver questions in the University, says that it would be a crime to vote for Bryan in view of his financial ideas. Prof. "The Question" is body to come out squarely for the nomination of the man from Ohio, and as President Perkins and Chairman Mott, of the League, and a great deal of ante-Convention work, they will, of course, have a much larger proportion of free-silver men among their students and professors than have those in the East, but it is surprising how they are coming around to McKinley. Bryan's managers are laying great stress on the fact that he is a young man, and appeals strongest to the first and work with but the College League is a very wise plan, and it is too late for the "Boy Orator" to change their convictions. The young men are for McKinley in the West.

NEBRASKA WELL ORGANIZED.

Probably in no State are the young men better organized for work for the principles of Republicanism than in the home of Bryan-Nebraska. Every one of the numerous colleges has a strong club, and has had all through the on-years when comparatively little interest is taken in matters political. Senator Thurston, of Nebraska, is the special favorite of these young men, and has done an immense amount of work to get them into line, with the most gratifying results. He is a member of the Advisory Board of the College League, and made the star speech, at its spring convention in 1906. He has already promised to speak to

The University of Chicago Republicans have challenged their Democratic rivals to a joint debate on the currency question, but they have received no response to their challenge, and probably will not. At the State University of Wisconsin it is almost impossible to find a Democrat, and the Republican party is the only one in the country that is not a party in its role. Northwestern University is one of the few which have taken a stand. It is no wonder that the College League counts it as one of its best strongholds. Stephen Dismore, a Northwestern student, is president of the National Association of College Civil Service Reform Clubs, a support organization of the Committee to Repeal the Espionage Laws. He is a Republican this fall, and has promised to give all his energies to work in Illinois and to get the League organized in that State. Many other men will do the same.

The colleges of Ohio are sold for McKinley, and have been even more so since the election. The hearty workers and good speakers, and requests for their services are so numerous that it is almost difficult to comply. The students in Ohio who are not in the League are so few that they must be the ones who have resolved to do their share in the work by organizing numerous new clubs who will accompany the League to the States. They will march with college songs, all worded so as to point a Republican moral.

TO ATTACK THE SOLID SOUTH.

The only section of the country where the College League has done no work previously is in the hitherto Solid South, but this year it has decided to enter the enemy's country, and the first fruit of this determination is the formation of the new Georgia College League club, the Tulane Uni-

University of New Orleans. Many of the faculty have joined, and the students are planning public meetings to protest the arrest of the men of the two faculties. Similar work is being done in the other large Southern universities.

The Committee is more than pleased with the prospect. If the other elements of the party do their work with success equal to that of the two faculties, the League will have won. The League had counted on having a vast majority of the students with it, but had the support of the two faculties as it is receiving.

ARREST OF ALLEGED PICKPOCKETS.

Two alleged pickpockets were arrested Friday morning on a Broadway street at Princeton, by Central Office Detectives. The men, known as John and William, were arraigned before Magistrate Strauss, in the Centre Street Court. At the request of the detectives they were remanded for twenty-four hours. The men gave their names as George Long, of No. 123 West Twenty-second, and James Sullivan, of No. 101 West Second streets. Sullivan, who is thirty-one years of age, has been discharged for lack of a complaint. The Central Office men say, however, that he is a well-known crook, and has served time. Sullivan was discharged on Thursday from the County Jail, where he had been held for robbery. A year ago he was released from a New York prison, where he had served eleven years on a life term for burglary.

As Long objected to being remanded to Police Headquarters the men were locked up in the Tombs.
